The Navigation Controller has a UINavigationItem. When I click on a item in the Navigation Controller I want to go to a detail view controller. If I add the view controller to the TabBarController the app crashes with the following exception. *-[UINavigationController setViewControllers:]: unrecognized selector sent to instance 0x30b3b50 The same exact code works if I place the view controller inside a Navigation Controller. A: Got the answer from a good friend. This is a bug in IOS, when we have a tab bar with a navigation controller as a rootviewcontroller and when we access the navigation controller, the access the tab bar items, the app crashes. For any one who encounters this issue in the future, the solution to this problem is to remove the navigation controller before accessing the tab bar items. [self.navigationController.view removeFromSuperview]; [self.tabBarController removeFromParentViewController]; [self.view addSubview: self.tabBarController.view]; Q: What is the difference between "sudo apt update" and "sudo apt-get update"? "sudo apt update" update the index of the apt-cache. f678ea9f9e
